Thank you for your interest in contributing to the GreenBook Blog! The blog allows you to share your expertise and thought-leadership on current topics in insights. If accepted, your article will be published on the site and promoted on our social media channels.

You are free to submit an article on the topic of your choice, but we do require that the article is original content and does not have a direct sales component. Self-promotional content of any kind will not be accepted. Articles typically range from 800-1200 words.

Articles are scheduled on a rolling basis 2-4 weeks in advance. Contributors will be notified of their posting date once available. The editorial team reserves the right to suggest title changes, and have full control over the following: image choice, tags, and summaries/descriptions for content and style consistency. If you wish to make minor edits to your article after it has been published you must let us know within two working days of publication.

Types of Articles Accepted:
- Brand or retailer case study
- Industry trends, events, or news analysis
- Interviews with high-profile leaders
- New methodology or emerging technology feature
- Predictive future analysis
- Tips or guides in "how-to" or "listicle" format

Content Requirements:
- Structured with sections, supporting evidence, and specificity in writing
- Adds value for the reader, to improve their work or career
- Does one of the following: builds curiosity, helps solve a problem, includes examples or mistakes (ie what went right, what went wrong), brand or retailer names, money or financial impact
- Article points are backed up with facts, statistics, research, graphs or data visualization, clear argument or position
- Maximum of three external links that must be relevant to the topic (pending approval from the GreenBook Blog editorial team). Self-promotional or affiliate/sponsored links are not accepted
- If referencing another publication the source must be properly cited or attributed. The GreenBook Blog has a zero-tolerance policy for plagiarism.
